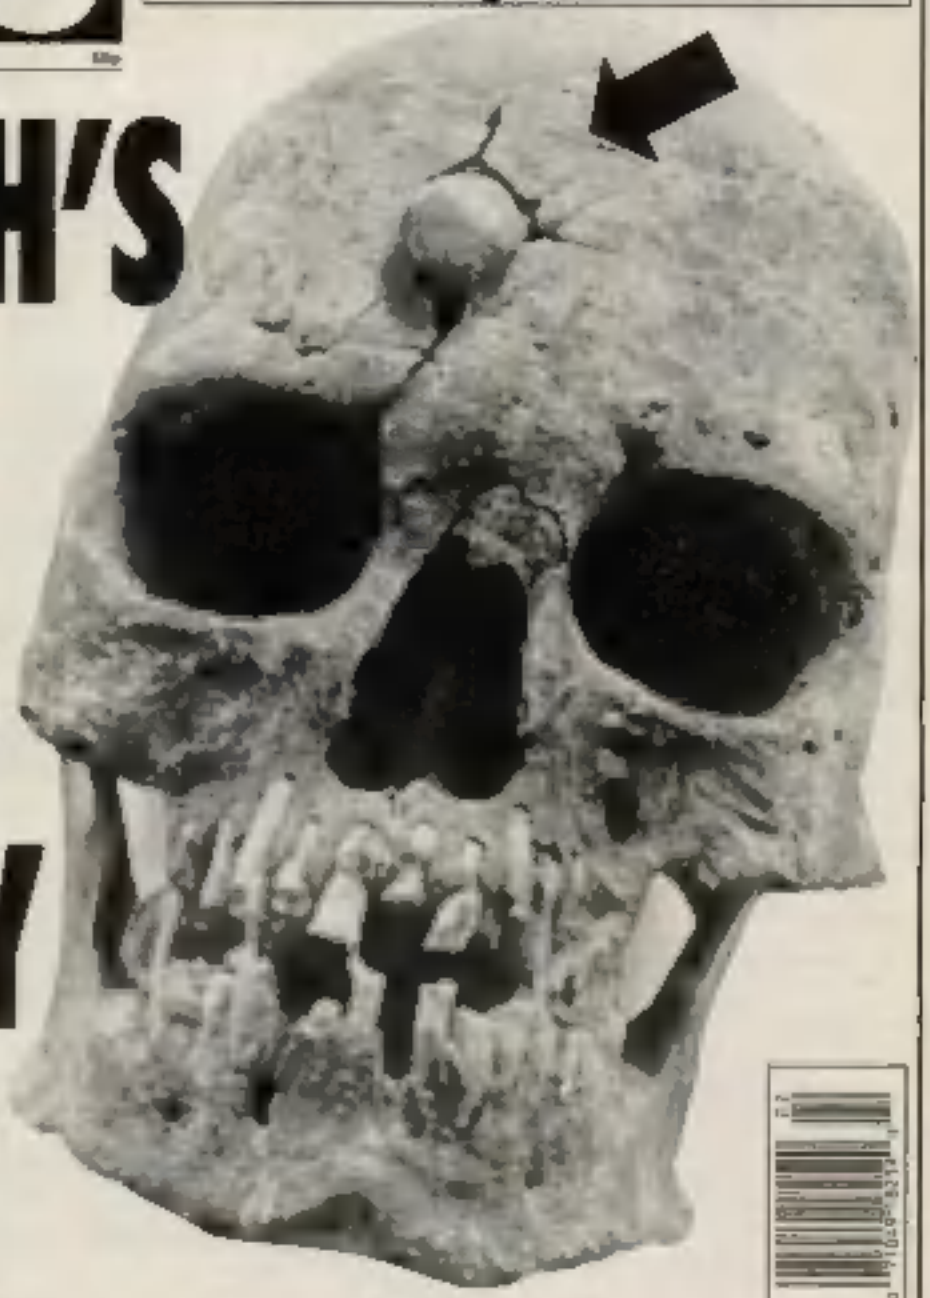
Stone from David's slingshot still stuck in giant's forehead!

GOLIATH'S SKULL FOUND IN HOLY LAND!



Dramatic discovery proves Bible story is true!

Surrogate mom-to-be stood on her head to make her sister a baby!

'I MADE MYSELF PREGNANT WITH A TURKEY BASTER!'

Janet Johnson and her husband Mark Wittley spent six years and $15,000 in a fruitless effort to have a baby using high-tech fertility treatments. Now at last the happy couple are expecting their first child — thanks to Janet's sister Julie and a $2.95 turkey baster!

Incredibly Janet sterilized the baster in her dishwasher, got her husband to donate semen and delivered the homemade fertility device to surrogate mom Julie Johnson.

Julie inseminated herself with the baster and then stood on her head for a half hour, repeating the same bizarre treatment the next day — and wound up a mom-to-be!

"I figured gravity couldn't hurt," says Julie, a Navy Lieutenant from Raleigh, N.C., who believes her upside-down position helped ensure the conception. The technique worked so well, in fact, that when she called her sister in Cary, N.C., to tell her she had missed her period and tested positive on a home pregnancy test, Janet was stunned.

"They didn't believe me," Julie said. "They made me buy another kit and do it again."

Julie is expected to give birth to a baby boy in the next few weeks, and the expectant parents are beside themselves with joy. After all their years of frustration, they will at last have the baby they yearned for, thanks to the low-budget baster.

"We were kind of fed up with the doctors," Janet admits. "It was costing so much and taking so much time. Now

Medical mystery: Bizarre flu hits families of Gulf War vets!

The Persian Gulf War has spread beyond the soldiers who participated to the wives and kids who stayed at home — because now families of the troops are suffering from the same puzzling flu-like disease that has been troubling the vets.

The bizarre disease causes chronic health problems that can't be cured with treat-the ailment and now about 7% percent of their wives have it, too, according to the Military Families Support Network of Dulen Creek, N.C.

Symptoms of the disease include fatigue, body aches and — in women — miscarriages. A number of children are also suffering from the ailment, according to the network.

U.S. USING TRAINED WHALES TO RAM DRUG BOATS!

Smugglers have no defense!

America is using a bizarre but effective new weapon in the war against dope smugglers — a team of highly trained whales that ram and sink drug-loaded boats on command!

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

So far, the team of six computer-guided humpback whales has sent more than 100 boats to the bottom, along with their illegal cargoes of cocaine and marijuana worth untold millions of dollars.

"And that's just in the first five weeks that the search-and-destroy operation has been underway," said an agent of the special task force that trained the drug-busting whales.

"They're deployed only in the Caribbean sector now," the federal agent said, "and we haven't even scratched the surface yet. But another half-dozen trained and radio-equipped whales will be working the area before the end of the year."

The agent said the operation is a simple one.

"The whales are fitted with waterproof receivers they've been trained to respond to," he said.

"Blimps equipped with radar to spot inbound drug planes are now being used to locate ocean-going ships that will load cocaine and marijuana onto smaller, faster delivery boats.

"The blimps relay the ship locations to a surface ship that monitors the location of the whales. A computer then plots a collision course that will enable the whales to intercept the small boats heading for the U.S. coast."

The agent said the mother ship then transmits sonic beeps that guide the whales.

"The whales are guided on a perfect collision course," the agent added.

"The drug boats are only about 30 feet long and when the whales ram into them, BAM! They're gone. The smugglers never know what hit them.

"The really nice part about it is that the whales aren't hurt in the least — and they've given us our first real advantage in the war against drugs."

Proof that Bible story of slain 10-foot-tall

GOLIATH'S SKULL IN HOLY

A leading archaeologist claims to have found Goliath's skull in a valley west of Jerusalem — with the stone from David's slingshot still embedded in his forehead!

Dr. Richard Martin says the discovery proves that David's battle with the 10-foot giant happened just like the Bible said it did, 1,000 years before the birth of Christ.

"This is the archaeological find of the century, if not of all time," Dr. Martin told reporters at a news conference in Jerusalem.

"Many people, including scholars and clergymen, would have us believe that the biblical account of David and Goliath is little more than an interesting piece of fiction," he said.

"But we found this skull in the Valley of Elah, in the foothills of the Judean Mountains, where David's battle with Goliath was said to have taken place.

"Even more intriguing, the skull is huge and clearly belonged to a man of enormous stature.

"And if you believe the Bible, you know that Goliath stood 9 feet, 9 inches tall.

"But the most telling piece of evidence is the small round rock we found embedded in the forehead.

"The Bible tells us that David killed Goliath with a stone flung from a leather sling. Coincidence?

"It might be — but I don't think so," said Dr. Martin, who found the skull during a routine archaeological survey about 20 miles southwest of Jerusalem on March 23.

By DAVID HUDSON
Special correspondent

AN average human skull measures approximately 10 inches from top to bottom. Goliath's measures 12 inches.

He and his assistants instantly realized that the find was important.

But it wasn't until they performed tests that showed the skull to be between 3,000 and 3,010 years old that they began to think they had actually found the remains of Goliath.

"The Bible places the battle between David and Goliath around 990 B.C., or 1,000 years before the birth of Christ," Dr. Martin said.

"According to the Bible, the battle began as a band of Israelites were preparing to fight a band of Philistines in the Valley of Elah.

"At that point in history, it was common for enemies to avoid massive casualties by allowing one man from each side to fight for their respective armies. To quote the Bible, the Philistine Goliath challenged the Israelites to 'choose a man and let him come to me. If he is able to fight with me and kill me, then we will be your servants.'

"'But if I prevail and kill him, then you shall serve us.'

David answered the challenge and killed Goliath with a single stone thrown from a leather sling.

"When Goliath hit the ground, David chopped off his head with Goliath's own sword.

"As I said before, the skull that we found had a rock stuck in the forehead.

"There was also evidence to suggest that the head had been severed from the body by a sharp object, most likely a sword.

"I know that the evidence is circumstantial, but when you put it all together, there can be little doubt that this is Goliath's skull. To be perfect frank, I'm staking my career on it."

While biblical scholars and other experts consider the ramifications of Dr. Martin's report, the archaeologist himself is planning to return to the site in search for other relics.

"Goliath was wearing a helmet and coat of mail when he was slain by David and I would like nothing more than to find them," he said.

How to wake up looking beautiful

Spend 30 minutes on beauty care at night and you can wake up gorgeous every morning!

Here's what beauty experts Georgette Klinger and Mariam Rodriguez suggest you do before hitting the sack to avoid the puffy eyes, tangled hair and bad breath that seem to haunt our mornings:

● Take your time removing makeup with a water-based cleanser, especially around the eyes where premature lines appear if you tug or pull at the skin.

● Don't use heavy oils and creams at night because they tend to seep into the tear ducts and cause puffiness in the morning.

● Use a cleanser that's appropriate for your skin type. Cleansing milks are best for dry skin, while foaming cleansers are good for oily skin. Both cleansers should remove the pores and remove all makeup.

● If you have dry skin, use a non-astringent cleanser, then apply a non-greasy night cream or moisturizer at least half an hour before bedtime. Just before going to bed, dampen a cotton ball with ice water and pat your face. Rubbing breaks down the tissue.

● Never wear curlers to bed. Instead, wash and blow-dry your hair so it will be tangle-free when you wake up.

● Use dental floss or a water pick

Your stars can make you a safer driver

. . . startling study says!

By DANIEL BARDWELL
Correspondent

If you want to be a safer driver, look to the stars — because your astrological sign reveals your driving weaknesses and the types of accidents you're most likely to have!

Those are the surprising findings of a study conducted by accident prevention expert Taro Ashida in Hygo Prefecture, Japan.

Ashida compiled records on all the accidents in his area last year, divided the at-fault drivers into 12 groups according to their zodiac signs, then closely examined each group to observe the similarities in driving habits and crash causes.

Here, sign by sign, are his findings and recommendations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Aries drivers were at fault in 8.8 percent of all accidents. Many mishaps happened between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., so use extra caution when driving during the day. Be especially alert when roads are crowded — 65 percent of Aries accidents involved collisions with other vehicles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Responsible for 9.2 percent of accidents. Since none of the accidents occurred between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m., you should be very alert and cautious while driving during the day.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Caused 9.3 percent of accidents. Most were caused by overly aggressive driving, such as cutting in front of other drivers. Beware of speeding, passing dangerously and swerving in and out of lanes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — 8.6 percent of mishaps, with most taking place in intersections. Slow down at all pedestrian crossing and make extra sure intersections are clear before proceeding.

LEO (July 23-August 22) — 7.4 percent of accidents. The majority occurred when Leo rear-ended other cars while driving on a straight road. Pay more attention while driving.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) — 10.7 percent of mishaps, most due to excessive speeds and driving on the wrong side of the road. Slow down, especially while approaching curves, and keep your eyes on the road.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) — 9.1 percent of accidents, the least of all the zodiac signs. But that doesn't mean a crash can't happen to you, so keep your wits about you — especially on straight roads during the day.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) — 8.8 percent of accidents. The majority of them head-on collisions on straight roads. Be wary when passing another vehicle.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) — 6.8 percent of accidents, usually broadside collisions at intersections. Closely observe stop signs and opposing traffic as you approach an intersection.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) — 11 percent of accidents, the most of any sign. Capricorns tend to ignore signs like "slow down" and "caution." Make an extra effort to observe all traffic signs.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) — 8.9 percent of mishaps. About four of 10 involved collisions with stalled vehicles, so be on the alert for them when driving. Remember to check carefully before turning and changing lanes.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) — Responsible for 8.4 percent of accidents, usually by disregarding stop or caution signs. That is your weakest point, so watch and obey all traffic signs.

Are space aliens zeroing in on Earth's radio frequencies?

NEIGHBORHOOD'S GARAGE DOORS COME TO LIFE!

They're opening and closing by themselves, say shocked residents

by SCOTTY PAUL / Correspondent

Frustrated folks in a once-quiet neighborhood say their automatic garage doors have gone berserk, mysteriously rolling open and slamming shut at all hours of the night — and they blame their troubles on UFOs from outer space!

Sophisticated electronic equipment from the alien spaceships also is blamed for problems with TV sets, dryers, and other electric appliances that have gone bonkers in the neighborhood near Abilene, Kan. — even when the electricity is turned off.

Mr. Frank Forrester, who claims to have seen strange saucer-shaped UFOs hovering over houses in the neighborhood. "Somehow, these space aliens have found a way to zero in on Earth's radio frequencies.

"My automatic garage door seems to open and close whenever it feels like it between midnight and dawn. My clothes washer flips on in the dead of night, and so does my TV, microwave, lights, blender and anything else that's plugged in.

"I haven't had a good night's sleep in three weeks."

matic garage door suddenly banged shut without warning.

"It was like the damned thing had a mind of its own," Turner told Weekly World News.

One elderly woman who lives alone was nearly scared out of her wits at midnight when her clothes washer, dryer and every appliance in her studio apartment mysteriously flipped on at the frightened woman tossed and turned in her bed.

"It was really very, very spooky," she said. "I called my neighbor who said the same thing was happening in her apartment. It was as if invisible hands were turning everything on."

Authorities didn't comment on the weird happenings, but the past month, I have witnessed what I believe to be an alien spaceship buzzing our neighborhood," he said.

"It had flashing blue and green lights and hovered about 200 feet in the air over our homes for several minutes before it suddenly zoomed out of sight.

"For some reason, those space aliens have chosen our neighborhood to test their electronic equipment. I sure hope they're finished. I'm afraid to go anywhere near my garage door after dark."

Sleaze queen Madonna begs movie bigwigs to play Princess Di!

CAN Madonna pull off the acting job of the century — playing Princess Di?

DESPERATELY SEEKING SUCCESS: Madonna needs a hit and she needs one pronto.

Sleaze queen Madonna hopes to save her sinking movie career by playing the world's most admired woman — Princess Diana!

The outrageous bleached blonde is begging Columbia Pix to let her star in a flick about Di's marital split from Prince Charles.

"Madonna is desperate to play the part of Diana," says Columbia spokesgal Andrea Kurdila.

She has been signed to spend months being trained by an acting coach to get Diana's accent right.

Independent Proposal director Adrian Lyne can't stand the right wing Yank even with a runaway hit starring Robert Redford and Demi Moore. "The Tin and the Angeles was a dog in parts. We were great," says Lyne.

JOE FANNON'S HOLLYWOOD

What ever happened to this Little Rascal?

The cutest little rascal of them all — George "Spanky" McFarland was 3 years old when he shot to stardom in 1931 as the leader of Our Gang. Almost 100 comedies later, Spanky packed it in and left Hollywood in 1944.

"I went into sales — wine, appliances, electronics — and I retired in 1974," says Spanky. "I have been doing personal appearances all along. There hasn't a day that someone didn't ask me to do Spanky, but I couldn't do it with my job."

What he could do was wow the crowd with Our Gang gossip.

"People are always surprised at the movie stories. Like that Alfalfa's hair Sweetie, and that there were two dogs that played Petey, and they each had a ring around a different eye. A lot of people ask if Buckwheat was a girl, but he was a boy."

And speaking of Buckwheat, Spanky wasn't at all thrilled by Eddie Murphy's mean mockery of the dead kid star on Saturday Night Live. "I didn't care for them a bit," says Spanky.

"Mr. Murphy did a very poor imitation. He made Buckwheat into a stereotype that he hasn't, at the expense of the people in his family who are still alive." McFarland now makes his home in Fort Worth, Texas.

"Clubbing was a big part of me but I think it's because I was a little lost."

And as for those so-called tantrums Shannen's supposed to throw at the drop of a hat — what tantrums? "I did not throw sandwiches," explains Shannen.

Country crooner Dwight Yoakam was knocked out by Grandview Elementary School when he was a kid.

"I sideswiped John Fogerty like a mountain," recalls Dwight.

"I became infatuated with his work. The compression freedom in his stuff that could be up and rocking and still speak very directly to the needs of a young audience."

That freedom triggered Yoakam's vision of country rock — and six albums later, Dwight's still country and still rocking.

SEXY AT 60!

Joan Collins is set for silver screen comeback!

Sexy 60-year-old Joan Collins is going before the movie cameras for the first time in 11 years, but the Dynasty superbitch isn't worried about how she'll come across on the big screen. "My body still looks okay.

"And that's how you should be judged — not the year you were born," says Joan.

"Age is irrelevant. Unless you happen to be a bottle of wine." Joan's comeback flick is called Decadence and she'll be saying something completely different in this one.

"I've never said the f-word on screen before. You can't say that in the nasty nineties."

— London Mirror

WOW! Going the 60 the bombshell Joan Collins doesn't look good for her age — the Dynasty diva looks tremendous.

The plot, about Hamish Henderson, a Glasgow lawyer on the run from his lover, "Will Joan ever find out he is the hunted man?" says a friend of Joan.

"This is exactly the reason he wanted to keep Tatum out of the limelight," Dwight says on the run from his lover. "When Joan sees this she'll be furious."

The best and worst time of day to make decisions!

You should make your major decisions in the morning — because that's when your anxiety and depression levels are the lowest, an expert says.

"When people are anxious or depressed, they aren't capable of weighing all the factors necessary to make the best decisions they're capable of," explained Dr. Neil Solomon.

"And since research shows that anxiety and depression levels are lowest in the morning, it's only sensible to make important decisions before midday."

University studies have found that the body's internal clock regulates our systems in such a way that anxiety and depression are lowest at certain times of the day, Dr. Solomon said.

The hours between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m. are the best time to make decisions, he said.

"And the period between 8 p.m. and 8 p.m. is the worst," Dr. Solomon said. "The absolute best time to make a decision is 8 a.m. — and the absolute worst is 8 p.m.

"The midday hours from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the late evening hours after 8 p.m. appear to be neutral times during which anxiety levels are neither exceptionally high nor low for most people.

"During these hours your natural body rhythms would neither help nor hinder your ability to make decisions."

ANT ARMY EATS 935 PEOPLE!

MASSIVE war army surrounded a Brazilian city and literally ate every man, woman and child in sight. Photo shows remains of some of the 935 human victims.

Millions of killer insects turn city into a sea of skeletons — overnight!

By TONY CASSIDY
Special correspondent

SAO JACURU, Brazil – A huge army of 2-inch-long killer ants swarmed through an Amazon jungle city, eating 935 men, women and children alive!

"When the ants were finished, there was nothing left but a huge pile of bones. It was a horrifying sight . . . It made me sick to my stomach," declared Dr. Roberto Drago, a member of a medical team sent to the dead city of Sao Jacuru to look for survivors.

"The skeletons of the dead are everywhere.

"It's like some terrible nightmare. Every inhabitant dead. Such unbelievable carnage."

One scientist warned that the killer ants have moved deeper into the jungle and are marching toward a large settlement where 500 loggers have been assembled for a sweeping tree clearing project.

"We have warned them that the killer ants are heading for their settlement and we have begged them to evacuate the area at once," a deputy interior minister said. "But they won't listen.

by environmentalists trying to halt the destruction of the Amazon rain forest, and nothing is further from the truth.

"In their state of mind, no power on earth — certainly not the threat of ants — is going to make them leave. I shudder to think of their fate. But if they stay, they are doomed."

Dr. Drago said he believes the voracious ant army was able to of night, while their unwary victims were sleeping.

"The way they work is to completely encircle the area to be attacked," Dr. Drago explained.

"Then they just move in. It's like a huge net being closed. Nothing can escape.

"At this very moment, they may be closing the net on the logging settlement. And nothing can stop them now, short of a nuclear bomb."

MILLIONS of 2-inch-long killer ants have banded together in South America, forming one of the world's most powerful armies!

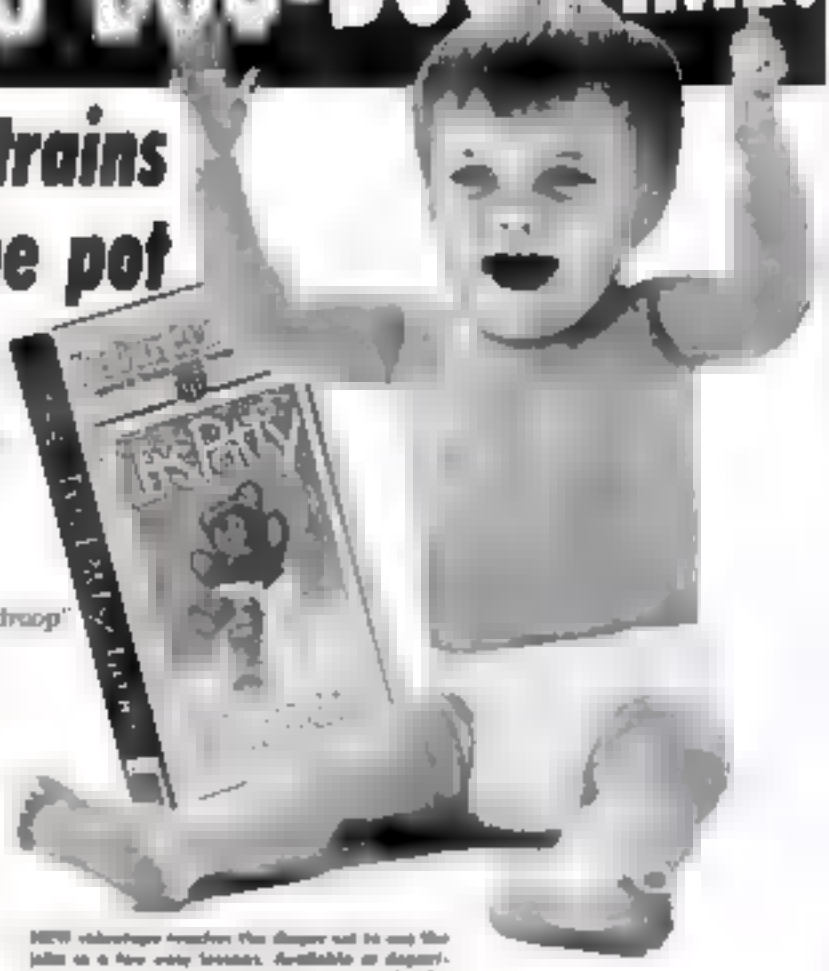
IT'S HOW TO DOO-DOO TIME!

Great new video trains your kid to use the pot



I'd always wondered why we could put a man on the moon but couldn't find a way to toilet train our kids till they were darn near teenagers.

Then I opened my mail the other day and found the greatest invention of the 20th century — a videotape that teaches the diaper set to use the john in a few easy lessons.

The instructional tape is called It's Potty Time and this thing deserves an Academy Award, for crying out loud.

I mean, my kids are in their 30s and could still learn a thing or two about using the potty from this video.

And there are tunes on the thing that are so lively you could dance to 'em. Like the one where the mom and dad sing "She's a Super Duper Pooper."

Now that one may never make the Hit Parade, but it's a real catchy little tune, by golly.

And my favorite song on the tape is "On Top Of Your Potty, You're Going To Poop" — sung to the tune of "On Top Of Old Smoky," of course.

I just wish the video had been around when my fat daughter-in-law Mandy was a kid.

Her mother once told me it took nearly eight years to potty train that little brat — and dumb as she is, I can believe it.

Now I'm thinking about putting out a potty-training video for dogs and cats.

My dog Duchess could star in the new "Nothing on Four" legs can use the john like you could benefit from potty training.

Millions of dogs and cats would benefit from potty training lessons featuring one of their own.

And I'd get rich, which would be the icing on the cake.

ED'S dog had a few slip-

China cuts crime 50% — by executing 20,000 criminals!

China has found a quick and simple way to slash its crime rate by close to 50 percent — by executing more than 20,000 hardened criminals in one bloody week.

Before the crackdown on crime was launched late last year, China had [illegible] crimes for every 10,000 people.

Now there are fewer than five crimes per 10,000 population — far less than the average in the United States.

Today's crime rate in America — 516 per 10,000 population — is more than 100 times higher than in China, according to FBI figures.

In China, capital punishment now extends to more than 48 crimes. Chinese convicts can be put to death for murder, rape, gang fighting, stealing, assault and battery and other offenses.

Convicted criminals are executed with a bullet in the back of the head.

This bride is a grandma — at age 15!

Girl marries mom's 40-yr.-old sweetheart & inherits new family

By PETER GORMAN

On her 15th birthday, schoolgirl Elize Coetzee married her 40-year-old sweetheart — her mom's live-in boyfriend!

Incredibly, when Elize tied the knot with Freddie van der Walt she became stepmother to Freddie's four children — two of whom are older than she is — and an instant grandmother.

TEENAGE temptress Elize Coetzee still wears her school uniform at weekends

Elize's 41-year-old mom Annie was shocked and jealous when her live-in beau revealed that he planned to marry her daughter.

"But I decided that as long as she was legal she was marrying a man who I knew from my own experience would make her a good husband," says Annie.

What's more, Annie even agreed to live with the newlyweds for three months to teach her daughter how to cook and clean.

Said the young bride: "It was the best 15th birthday present any girl could want — marriage to my fiance! I'll be in for a rough stepmother and I'll surely be a doting grandmother!"

The tangled love story began five years ago when Freddie, a customs clerk from Bremen, moved in with divorcee Annie in Pretoria, South Africa.

"Elize and Freddie hit it off from the start even though she was just a kid of 10," revealed Annie, a nurse.

Said Freddie: "We started to feel closer and closer to each other. At first I thought Elize was looking for a father figure, but I soon realized she wanted me as a boyfriend. Because she's so young, I decided it would be best if I avoided her. Then one day I realized I was truly in love."

Said the 15-year-old grandmom: "I told him I loved him. That's when we decided to get married."

Freddie and Elize went together to break the news to Elize's mom. "I was shocked and jealous at first," Annie admitted. "I thought of Elize as a little girl. But you can't stand in the way of true love."

Elize said: "School authorities were not too pleased with me — they wouldn't let me wear my engagement ring to school." said Elize. "But my mother laughed at backing me when I was naughty and treated me like a grown up."

On the day she became legally of age for marriage, Elize traded in her school uniform for a white satin wedding dress and married Freddie.

"It was a great day for me," Freddie said. "All my friends at work are so jealous. I believe our marriage was made in heaven."

NOTING MOM: Annie Coetzee, right, will live with the newlyweds, Elize and Freddie, and has promised to help with the housework.

'MY WIFE'S GHOST STILL COOKS, CLEANS & IRONS MY SHIRTS...

ASTONISHED Floyd Archer holds up the shirt his wife's ghost washed and ironed.

...but her constant nagging is driving me bonkers!'

NELLIE ARCHER drowned in a vat of pork in 1991

When Floyd Archer's wife Nellie died two years ago, Floyd thought he was finally free of her constant yapping. Then Nellie's ghost moved in — and started driving him crazy with her nonstop nagging!

The yakking apparition does Floyd's cleaning, washing and ironing and cooks all his meals. But her barging in is making his life hell.

"Really, it's no different, around here than when she was alive," said the 44-year-old farmer.

"Her ghost even irons my shirts so I have something decent to wear to church. That always was important to her.

"And she's a wonderful cook. She whips up three terrific hot meals a day.

"The next morning I woke up with one hell of a hangover," Floyd admitted. "But there were bacon and eggs and hot coffee on the table and the house was clean as a whistle.

"And there was Nellie's ghost standing there in an apron with a scowl on her face. She said she'd never let another mess like that again, she'd hang me up by my suspenders.

first things I did was call my friend Silas and tell him she's back.

He thought I'd gone stark raving mad. But he soon changed his mind."

What awakening came two days later when he went to Floyd's place to help him repair a chicken coop. At noon, Floyd invited his friend in for lunch.

"I figured Floyd and me would whip up a couple of sandwiches or something, but when I walked into the kitchen there was a nice hot meal sitting on the table," Silas recalled.

"And there was Nellie big as life, saying, 'Get up here.' I was so shocked you could have knocked me over with a feather.

"I never believed in ghosts, but I believe now. This sure made a believer out of me."

As for Floyd, he says he'll go on trying to make the best of it.

"Her nagging just never stops," he said. "But I try not to listen. And now, when she stands in front of the TV to take her hell with me like she used to, I just keep on watch ing.

"That's one good thing about a ghost.

My mom has the hots for my teenage boyfriend!

Dear Dott: I'm 17 years old and have a wonderful teenage boyfriend who's handsome, intelligent and very sweet. Unfortunately, my 42-year-old mother has the hots for him and is constantly trying to steal him from me.

I don't know what to do, Dott. And I especially don't want my dad to find out. What can I do? — Heartsick in Fort Worth

Dear Heartsick: The solution to your problem is as plain as the nose on my face. The next time the old fool flirts with your boyfriend, tell him to laugh in her face!

Rescuers dig man out of s — seconds before tide come

Rescuers, some digging with their bare hands, toiled feverishly to rescue a man buried to his neck in sand on a sun-kissed Florida beach — as the incoming tide threatened to drown him like a rat!

But just as the rushing sea was lapping only inches from his face, 20-year-old Kelly Dobbs was pulled from the pit that had held him in a near-fatal grip for three hours.

Kelly's spine-chilling ordeal began when he and two teenage pals -- Robert Norberts and Dave Arbour -- decided to dig tunnels on the beach north of West Palm Beach.

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Kelly was digging on his knees in a 7-foot-deep hole when it suddenly collapsed around him, burying him up to his neck in heavy, wet sand.

"I wasn't worried about the tide at the time," Kelly told Weekly World News.

"When the hole caved in I was trapped up to my neck in sand — and the top of my head was still three feet below the surface of the beach.

I was really worried that the rest of the hole would collapse in on me. Then I would have been completely buried.

"There's just no way I could have lived with my head buried under three feet of wet sand."

The race to dig Kelly free racing in the sand. The road flanking the beach was closed to all but emergency traffic.

Rescuers put a large, open-ended bucket over Kelly's head to protect it against further cave-ins.

The digging was slow. Al

30 Day Moneyback Guarantee

By SUSAN MARCUS

Millie Moran and her sister Adeline recently celebrated their 100th birthday — making the Illinois grannies the oldest living twins in the world!

The five-score sisters were born in 1893 when Grover Cleveland was president, Queen Victoria was perched on the British throne and Henry Ford was putting the finishing touches on his first motorcar.

They remember when light bulbs were a novelty and recall reading lurid news of war in Cuba on the Spanish-American War.

"We're in slow motion now, but we're still going," says ingenue Millie who, like her sister, is still sharp as a tack. "We've had a wonderful life."

Since the gray-haired sisters were born on Easter Sunday a century ago, they're greeted every day with enthusiasm, curiosity and good humor — traits that have won them the affection of countless friends through the years.

Their warmth and sense of fun make them the most popular ladies in their Evanston, Ill., neighborhood. Every day, neighbors drop in to see the twins, and on their birthdays, friends and relatives closed an entire city block and hundreds of people lurched out to wish them well.

"We had a big do with a tent and champagne and everything," Millie told Weekly World News. "We had letters from as far away as California, New Mexico and Oregon. It was wonderful."

The twins credit a sensible life style with helping them healthy and energetic enough to reach such a ripe old age. They have never smoked and didn't drink until they had to, when a doctor recommended they have a glass of sherry now and then.

"If people want to live a good long life, just tell them to be friendly. The only thing that really matters in life is other people. When you have friends, you are rich," Millie said.

HOUSEWIFE HOOKER LIVED A BIZARRE DOUBLE LIFE!

Suburban mom sold her body for $300 an hour, say cops

Slim and sexy Jeannine Schueller lived an amazing double life, as a well-to-do suburban housewife with a husband and four kids by night — and a $300-an-hour hooker by day, cops say.

Every morning for almost a year, the slinky blonde mom left her two story home with a swimming pool and swing set for a life of illicit sex that netted her a whopping $10,000 a month, Philadelphia authorities said.

"Her code name was Courtney and she was a specialist in a sexual game called Bi Bi Baba in which she and another hooker performed sex acts on each other and on johns for $300 an hour," Assistant District Attorney Janet Hansen told reporters.

Officers said blue eyed Jeannine, 36, took part in 100 of these disgusting sessions during their five month investigation and worked frequent solo sessions.

The shapely lady, whose [illegible] age from 2 to 7, led her secret life exposed when cops raided the headquarters of a prostitution ring they say was headed by Philadelphia Police Lt. Joseph Kelly and his wife Jayne.

Mrs. Schueller worked the 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift and apparently made arrangements for someone to care for her children, Detective Hansen said. She isn't the first housewife to supplement her husband's income by working as a prostitute and she won't be the last.

But Jeannine's neighbors in Bristol Township, Pa., were shocked when they heard about her secret.

"It was a surprise to me. I can tell you that," said an eight year old who lives next to Jeannine and her hubby Kevin.

"I've only had about three conversations with her but she always seemed like a pretty average person."

Another neighbor said she's never seen any police cars at the Schueller home. "The kids play. He seems like a good father," the neighbor said.

"But nobody knows the answers. Maybe she needed the money."

Detectives charged Jeannine with prostitution, criminal conspiracy and violating the state's corrupt organizations law.

She has pleaded not guilty to the charges that could send her to prison for 10 to 20 years.

NEIGHBORS said they never saw any problems at the Schueller's suburban home. "Maybe she needed the money," one added.

SHAPELY Jeannine Schueller advertised her services in a Philadelphia sex magazine, cops says. "Her code name was Courtney," said Assistant District Attorney Janet Hansen.

Hospital patient Henry Ock was lying in bed with pure oxygen flowing through tubes in his nose when he lit up a cigarette — and blew himself to pieces!

Nurses in Brisbane, Australia, said hapless Henry — recovering from a respiratory ailment — had asked for a cigarette the day before and had been warned not to smoke while the oxygen was flowing.

"So apparently he got a friend to bring him some cigarettes anyway — and the next thing we knew, he and his entire room went up in flames," added nurse Wilma Castorena.

BAD diets make teens feel so rotten they turn to [illegible] to feel better.

By TANYA BRODER
Special correspondent

American teenagers are driven to Devil worship by just one thing: Junk food!

That's the shocking conclusion of California researcher Dr Wolfgang Meyer, who says a bad diet leaves teens feeling so rotten they turn to [illegible] to feel better.

"It's not generally known that the wrong foods can have such a catastrophic impact on behavior, but they definitely can," Dr Meyer said.

"I spent 13 years studying boys and girls between the ages of 11 and 18 and closely observing their diets.

"And I found a definite correlation between Devil worship and a diet high in sweets, fat and low nutrition foods.

"In fact, there was nothing else that predicted an interest in satanism so accurately.

"Family background, education, criminal history, intelligence — nothing was as closely linked to Devil worship as a junk food diet."

Dr Meyer reached his shocking conclusion after interviewing and recording data on 378 teenage boys and girls from all walks of life.

The study — which took 13 years to complete — involved a day by day description of the children's food, drink, activities and sleep schedules.

"There's no denying that a bad diet can drive

JUNK FOOD CAUSES TEENS TO WORSHIP THE DEVIL!

kids over the edge," the nutritionist said. "I have already begun a study that I expect will show this happens as the result of vitamin starvation.

"But until this phenomenon is better understood, I strongly advise parents to be sure their teenagers are getting an adequate diet. As bizarre as it sounds, a junk food diet can lead them into a world of bloody satanic sacrifices — or even the ritual killing of innocent human beings."

EXPERT Dr. Wolfgang Klopps

EATING junk food can lead teens to primal rampages and the ritual killing of innocent humans, according to expert Dr. Klopps.

The Tightwad Gazette suggests these painless ways penny-pinchers can save $100 a year:

- Dry 10 articles of clothing from thrift shops.
- Hang four loads of clothes out to dry each week instead of using your clothes dryer.
- Make pizza from scratch once a month instead of ordering out.
- Write a good letter every two weeks instead of calling long distance.
- Drink four fewer cans of soda pop each week.
- Bake two loaves of bread a week.
- Reduce your smoking by three cigarettes a day.
- Pack your lunch four days a week instead

Hail the size of bowling balls flattens town!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

Two people were killed and 96 others were seriously injured during a raging storm — when they were struck down by hailstones as big as bowling balls!

"This town was combed by cyclones kept for almost 30 minutes," said Police Sgt. Juan Camparos of Chiapa, Mexico. "I myself saw hailstones that weighed 15 to 18 pounds.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life."

Thousands were left homeless as the cannonball hail punched holes in the roofs of nearly every home, business and government building in this southern farm town.

A 43-year-old cab driver and a young mother in her 20s were killed by hailstones as they fled for cover. Both suffered skull fractures and died on the spot.

At least 96 others were treated for head injuries, bruises and broken bones caused by the hail.

The freak storm struck around noon as shoppers milled about the streets of little Chiapa.

"First there were torrents of rain and then suddenly huge boulders of ice came crashing down on us," Sgt. Camparos said.

"It was the most incredible thing I've ever seen. Several of them just missed me by inches as I ran toward my patrol car."

Doctors and nurses from surrounding towns helped care for the injured, and the homeless were being sheltered in the few government buildings that weren't damaged or destroyed.

"This place looks like a war zone," one town official said.

Meteorologists are at a loss to explain the freak hailstones.

"Hailstones form in clouds

Two killed, 96 injured as ice bombs crash through roofs!

dropped on dust particles or snowflakes," said meteorologist Jesus Torres. "These tiny hailstones are blown up and down by the winds in a cloud.

"Each time they are blown down to a region where the temperature is above freezing, the stones collect more moisture. Each time they are blown to an area below freezing, the moisture solidifies into ice.

"The stones continue to grow until they are too heavy to be supported by the wind, and then they fall to the ground.

"But it is extraordinary that the storm could reach it in its periods. It's just nature gone temporarily mad."

Stadium has special area for nudists!

Some stadiums have designated areas for smokers, drinkers or families — but a new ballpark in Maracay, Venezuela, has a special area for nudists!

"A lot of people go to ball games just because they enjoy sitting out in the sun," spokesman Aquiles Rojares said.

"We've decided to set aside an area in the bleachers for folks who enjoy getting an all-over tan."

IRON MAN

Worker never took a sick day — in 44 years!

OLD RELIABLE: Leroy Mills.

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Leroy Mills retired from his factory job with no ill feelings. In fact, the 65-year-old fiber inspector didn't log a single sick day since the day he was hired — back in 1949!

In his 44 years at the Wix Corp. in Gastonia, N.C., Leroy has had his share of the sniffles, aches and pains and, every now and then, a bad case of the blues. But he never missed a day of work because of illness.

"I just have to thank the Lord for keeping me ill and healthy all those years," the smiling, easygoing father of one explained modestly.

"Oh, I had colds and an occasional headache. Things like that. But I never felt I was sick enough to stay home from work. And there were times when there was something else I wanted to do or I just didn't feel like going to work that day. But I figured myself to go. I was afraid that if I pretended to be sick, I really would get sick."

Leroy's theory of life was following in his father's footsteps when he went to work at Wix as an oil analyst, testing fibers produced at the plant.

But he stands alone for having the best attendance record in the firm's history.

"If you go through five or 10 years without missing a day, that's remarkable," said Bill Spencer, Leroy's former supervisor. "It's incredible that he never had a sick day in 44 years." Grateful Wix officials gave their dedicated worker a great retirement bash.

Then he was on his own to enjoy the things he likes doing the best — fishing, gardening and doing volunteer work at his church.

Female Ted Bundy chopped boyfriends up with an axe!

Beautiful serial killer murdered 100 men!

By DEBBIE MEMBY/Correspondent

One of the cruelest and most devious criminals in history was a woman — beautiful serial killer Belle Gunness who murdered more than 100 men!

The crimes of the woman they called The Female Bluebeard are detailed in the fascinating book The World's Wickedest Women by Margaret Nicholas.

To her neighbors she seemed like a pleasant lady — a hardworking widow who ran a small farm in the hills of La Porte County, Ind. But Belle Gunness killed more than 100 people.

She had poisoned her first husband to get the insurance money she used to buy her farm.

Then for years afterward she advertised in small newspapers for a new husband and when her suitors came to visit her, she would murder and rob them.

One by one they fell into her trap. The prospective new bride would be welcomed with open arms, shown around the farm, be treated to a huge farmhouse supper, and taken to a guest room. That room would become his death cell.

The door was fastened with a spring lock, the windows had iron bars.

First Belle would eliminate her suitor. Then she would kill him with an ax. More than 100 men fell into the trap.

After Belle died in a fire in 1908, a farmhand told cops about the horrible crimes.

Lost dog & owner keep missing each other — by minutes!

HEARTBROKEN Karen Crumpton pores fliers in hopes of locating her beloved dog Max

By RICK DONOVAN / Staff writer

If Karen Crumpton's desperate search for her lost dog Max wasn't so heart-tugging, it would make a Keystone Kops comedy — because their paths have crossed more times than she can count!

Folks in West Covina, Calif., say Karen and her beloved German shepherd have missed meeting each other by as little as 10 minutes. They've been less than a block apart at times — yet failed to find one another.

Dozens of people have seen Max. Dozens of people have tried to catch him. Dozens of people have failed. So far the $1,000 reward offered for the safe return remains unclaimed.

MISSING DOG: Max

"He'd climbed up search that's why he ran off in the first place — to look for me," said Karen, a raven-haired beauty who's named German-born Max since he immigrated to America as a pup five years ago.

Max' big adventure began February 4, after 23-year-old Karen went out of town to check out her new home there. She had left Max with her aunt overnight.

Sometime during the day, the police-trained K-9 pooch leaped a fence and set about doing what he's trained to do — sniff out adventure.

Karen returned home that night and discovered Max missing. "Max has never done that before, or I would have known," she said. "I'd have just opened the door for him to get in."

Daily Jo Larsen has had her encounters with the elusive Max. The first time, she hadn't even seen any of the hundreds of reward posters Karen has plastered all over West Covina.

"I was walking my little poodle, Allie, both times," she said. "I was in my apartment to change Allie, maybe just run back to call him. And he was gone."

In all, Karen has logged hundreds of miles and many, many hours searching for Max.

In addition to the posters she leaves lots of cloth at dog-legs sites. They carry her scent so that Max will know she's out there looking for him.

"Max is just like my child," Karen said. "I'm not going to give up on him because I know he won't give up on me. He'll always be looking for me. And I know in my heart that some-day we'll find each other."

Man gives girlfriend perfume made from his own sweat!

Convicted chemist Frank DeLunga cooked up a terrific little love gift for his girlfriend: A bottle of high-powered perfume made from his own sweat!

And incredibly, the 37-year-old rumpled sweetheart Cindy Alberti loved her new "Eau de B.O." and splashes it on daily day after her shower.

"I love to have the smell of the man I love up my body," says Cindy Alberti.

"It's like having him near me all day.

"And I feel that to me his sweat smells wonderful.

"It's very sexy. It's irresistible."

The chemist, who works for a lotion-producing company near Los Angeles, decided to whip up some perspiration perfume for his sweetheart after reading about a similar project being promoted by country singer Sammy Kershaw.

Reckless is setting up his sweat in a company called Sexopumpes Inc. which uses it to produce up to a bottle a week for his fans.

Frank thought the idea was so great he decided to do the same thing as a loving gesture for his girlfriend.

"I've said that certain body odors are attractive to the opposite sex," he said. And Cindy has told me on more than one that she loves the way I smell.

"So I decided it would be really easy to mix up a bottle of perfume from my own sweat as a special treat for her.

"I used a sponge to collect the stuff after my basketball games with the boys. When I had a couple of ounces of sweat, I strained it to kill the bacteria and mixed it with a drop of Cindy's favorite

"It's like having him near me all day," says Cindy Alberti, whose boyfriend Frank DeLunga gave her a bottle of perfume made from his own perspiration.

$5.9-MILLION WINNER STILL WORKS AS GARBAGE MAN!

BUCKS & TRUCKS: Albert Knights is the only millionaire who still makes $140 a week collecting garbage — but his wife Margaret, left, quit her job.

Four months after winning a $5.9 million lottery jackpot, down-to-earth Albert Knights still gets up before dawn five days a week and goes to work — picking up garbage!

By JACK ALEXANDER

"He's gotta be the only millionaire anywhere who still makes $140 a week driving a garbage truck," quipped David Long of the Tri-States Megabucks lottery for Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. When easygoing Albert, 61, struck it rich last November, his wife Margaret tried to talk him into retirement so they could enjoy the money – but he wouldn't hear of it.

"I said to him, 'Why don't we cruise and do our thing?' " she recalled. "He told me, 'Margaret, if you make me give it up, I'll kill you.'

"So I told him, 'Honey, if it means that much to you, then you keep doing it.'

But Margaret did give up her part-time job cleaning other people's houses in Sidney, Maine, for $30 to $40 a week.

She's even sported a new $1,000 diamond ring, new glasses and a new gold ring all gifts from her hubby of 37 years.

"We've never had a lot of money, but we've never needed a lot of money to be happy," said the shy granny, who boasts nine children, 20 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

"Albert's very generous and he's always wanted to help his children and grandchildren. He's always been a very good provider."

Albert's biggest splurge was a pair of $195,000 Peterbilt trucks – one for himself and one for his son Jeffrey, 35, who also works for the garbage company.

Albert also bought himself a $19,000 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, which he rides on his days off.

The couple's other purchases include a $120,000 van and $10,000 worth of furniture for their trailer, and they put a down payment on their $200,000 seven-room dream home being built nearby.

But hardworking Margaret kept her promise to help the poor by donating a portion of their winnings each year to the Shriners. And she's arranged trust funds for each of the couple's three children.

Still, no one is happier about the couple's good fortune than neighbour David Mayberry.

"They're not pretentious at all," he said.

"They have so much enthusiasm for

Wacky facts you didn't know about our Presidents!

Contrary to popular belief, Abraham Lincoln did not write the speech he delivered at Gettysburg on the back of an envelope on his way to town.

He wrote the speech that was to become known as the Gettysburg Address two weeks in advance and he rewrote it several times, on White House stationery.

Although the Gettysburg Address later became one of the most famous speeches in U.S. history the press at the time panned Lincoln unmercifully for it. The Chicago Times referred to it as "silly, dishwatery utterances."

Here are some more fascinating excerpts from the book Fourteen Presidents Before Washington by Herman D. Bever:

President George Washington had an aversion to hand shaking — refusing to clasp hands with anyone.

He believed that a hand shake was beneath a President's dignity so he always received visitors with a courtly bow.

Even his best friends never raised a handshake.

Washington also wasn't a very good public speaker. In fact, he rarely even read his Farewell Address — he had it printed in a newspaper!

Washington never shook hands!

ALL WORM & NO PLAY!

Gal makes $300 a week packing — NIGHT CRAWLERS!

By JOE BERGER Staff writer

Go-get-em Jean Harvey's got a job that would make most gals shudder and shiver. But eager-beaver Jean's just wild about her work — even though she spends her days elbow-deep in fat, juicy earthworms!

At the official worm picker-outer's farm in Lenoir City, Tenn., the laid-back lady plucks the plumpest of the creepy critters from big wet piles and packs them into cups to be shipped to fishermen across the nation.

And the remarkable mom's been picking 'em and packing 'em like a champ since she answered a help-wanted ad for the job seven years ago.

"I wasn't real sure what I'd gotten myself into the first time I reached down into all those shovelfuls and thousands of worms and felt them wriggling and poking around like they do," admitted easygoing Jean, 35.

"Then I reminded myself they were just plain old night crawlers, and it wasn't spooky anymore."

The nimble-fingered former truck mechanic can stuff 12,000 squirming worms into cartons in a single day — and right home as much as $300 a week for Jenny K.

And while most folks might cringe at the notion of toddling up to all those creepy crawlies, Jean actually digs her job.

"It's satisfying work and the pay's not bad at all," she said.

And the worm-picking biz has just gotten better for cracker-jack Jean because her hubby James now works with her — feeding the worms the nutritional chow mix to make them fish-tempting fat. "We talk shop a lot," the lady worm-wife told a reporter.

"It's nice when someone knows what it means to have a bad day if the worms are small."

SQUIGGLY SQUIRMERS! Jean Harvey spends her days up to her elbows in fish bait — and she loves it!

Kid's 15-day pep talk brings dying 11-year-old back to life!

ROAD TO RECOVERY: Nickie Frastoff, left, with brother Tom.

By BEATRICE DEXTER
National correspondent

Little Tom Frastoff pulled off a miracle when he brought his brother out of a coma — by talking his ear off!

The 10-year-old sat at the bedside of badly injured Nickie, 11, and yakked him morning till night for days on end, telling him all about his baseball triumphs, news of their chums and even reading to him.

Incredibly, the chatterbox treatment worked, bringing Nickie back from the brink of death. "It's a miracle," said the boys' mother Alison, 42. "Thanks to Tom, Nickie is himself again, walking and talking and carrying on. It's just all wonderful seeing what love can do."

"The doctors say it was Tom's nonstop talking that brought Nickie around," added Nickie was conscious.

Doctors warned Alison that her son might not survive. The boy was in a deep coma and did not move or respond to normal stimulus.

From the first time he saw his brother, Tom was determined to bring him back to life," Alison said. "He vowed me to let him stay by Nickie so I let him. They got Tom a cot to put by Nickie's bed and he stayed there day and night. All day long, he would talk to his brother, chatting, singing, reading to him. For a long time it looked like he wasn't getting anywhere — but Tom never left his side."

Finally, 15 days after Tom began his talkathon, little Nickie showed signs of life. When Tom told him a joke, Nickie smiled. The next morning he giggled a bit. Hours later he spoke his brother's name — and from then on Nickie was on the road to recovery.

"Now he's home and the boys are playing like they always did," Alison said. "We

Women led Indian braves into battle

...& they beat the hell out of enemy tribes!

By SCOTT ROBERTSON / Correspondent

In many Indian tribes in early America, women "were the pants" — the squaws owned all the tribe's property and they even led warriors into battle!

Indian women were so dominant they appointed the male chief and beat him or killed him if he displeased them — just as if he were one of the enemy, a famed historian says.

"For some Indian societies, women's life was a lot like hundreds of years before our modern American women ever dreamed of the term," said Dr. David Wrone.

"When the great explorer Hernando de Soto landed in the southern states in 1540, for example, he found a woman, Queen of the Cofitachiki, in charge of a Creek Indian tribe.

"She led an army of men with bows and quivers, and ruled over tens of thousands of followers. She was armed and directed the battle.

"De Soto commanded an army of battle-hardened veterans. But he couldn't whip the Queen and was forced to flee from the Carolinas."

In another incredible incident, a young chief in the Oneida tribe headed out with a female war party — without consulting the women.

"He was punished with a terrible enemy by the women, who made it painfully obvious they thought he was wrong," Dr. Wrone said. "But after he recovered, they allowed him to continue as chief, confident he had learned his lesson.

"And the Iroquois women went even further.

"They had the power to remove any of their 50 elite chiefs if they displeased them — and could actually order them to be killed.

"Among the Iroquois, the women owned all the property. Inheritances went from mother to daughter, and father to son.

"Women also controlled all agricultural production, which meant they controlled the economy."

The influence of women in Indian tribes began to fade when the Indians came into contact with white Americans, Dr. Wrone said.

Burglar busted in bubble bath!

Secretary Golda Weinberg got the shock of her life when she came home from work and found a burglar in her bathtub!

"He was right there taking a bubble bath," 23-year-old Golda told police in Ramla, Israel.

"He almost scared me to death but he never got out of the water.

"And then the creep acted like I was wrong to walk in on him."

Police arrested the middle-aged intruder and charged him with breaking and entering. But after her police showed up, "I ran to my neighbor's and called for help," Golda said.

"That guy never even left the house."

A message from Heaven!

If you've topped the age of 30, you have no trouble remembering those great Burma Shave signs that, back in the '20s and '40s, were strung along our roadways from coast to coast. They sure helped keep us youngsters entertained.

Well, that was then and this is now, and along comes St. Louis photographer Sam Fentress who, since 1981, has been gathering photographs of religious signs that have pretty much replaced those great Burma Shave signs of yore.

Some are funny all are heartwarming. Like the "God is like" sign displayed by Fentress in Madison, N.C. See if you can add to the list. Here's one: God is like a manufacturer's rebate...He won't let you down!

Come to think of it, "God is like" would make a great ice game for the kids. The next time they start getting antsy in the backseat, it's worth a try.

HOW TO GET HITCHED IF YOU'RE OVER 35!

"It's difficult for single women to find partners as they get older because there are fewer men available," Miss Lovenheim says.

But her statistics do point out that more women over 35 are beating the odds by marrying younger men — about a 20 per-

Secret ingredient in new skin cream — GLOBS OF HUMAN FAT!

Skin cream companies in the Far East are making their products from a new miracle ingredient — disgusting globs of human fat!

The chunks of yellow fat are purchased from plastic surgeons and liposuction clinics around the world and melted into creams and salves used to treat dry skin. The ingredient is called "adipocere" and consumers have no idea what it is, a shocking report by the Philippine government says.

"The manufacturers of these creams save a fortune since animal or plant oils are the special ingredients in their products," says Dr. Jose Rizal, who authored the report. "They tell their products at lower cost or local materials and export them to third world countries in Asia where consumers have no idea what they're getting."

The claim is that human fat seems to work quite well as these creams lotions and salves are big sellers. The companies that produce them are making money hand over fist."

Dr. Rizal discovered the human fat is being obtained from expensive cosmetic plastic surgeons and hospitals.

It is imported from the unsuspecting sleighs and hips of pudgy patrons, then sold as waste for the equivalent of $3 a pound.

"Cosmetic companies buy the human fat by the shipload and then bring it to the Philippines for processing.

"It's often rancid and rotten by the time it arrives here by ship," Dr. Rizal says. "But they don't care because they've been trained they can disguise the stink with strong perfume. Processing usually involves breaking up the fat, heating it to liquefy it and then mixing it with water. Salt also is made to kill bacteria or viruses that might be present in the product.

"The thought of spreading globs of fat from some French lady's thighs on your face is disgusting enough. But we're worried about the health consequences. We're concerned disease might be transmitted through the skin pores from creams containing the fat to unsuspecting consumers."

Dr. Rizal says that in his knowledge none of the products containing liposuction fat have made it to markets in the Western world. But he believes it is just a matter of time before cosmetic manufacturers try to smuggle the lovely creams into Europe and the United States.

"Fortunately, there are safeguards to prevent countries from selling products containing human fat to unsuspecting women," Dr. Rizal says. "That's what is needed here in the Philippines. Until we have that type of safety, I'm going to take the responsibility myself and say that we do away with human fat products. This are a health menace and an affront to every female consumer."

Shocking diary of Vatican's top exorcist!

FATHER Germano Ventura

ROME, Italy — A Catholic priest officially authorized by the Vatican to perform exorcisms says he's witnessed such horrifying and grotesque events while battling demons that they've given him nightmares.

'My most terrifying battles with the Devil!'

In an interview, Father Germano Ventura of Rome said he watched in stunned disbelief as a man's face grew a pig's snout . . . witnessed a man possessed by a horrible snake-like demon with a forked tongue . . . and saw a boy vomit up four pounds of stones!

"I've never spoken about these experiences up to now because they were so appalling that I feared readers would be shocked," the robust 61-year-old priest said.

"But the power of the Devil is spreading all over the world," he said. "And church authorities thought it was time to tell everybody how the Devil is physically present among us every day.

Father Ventura, who has been performing exorcisms for more than 30 years, revealed that he has chased out powerful demons that had caused people to be paralyzed and unable to speak.

In one of his most terrifying experiences, Father Ventura was blessing a very calm man when the man suddenly fell to the ground and his body began changing into other forms as "if it were made of rubber."

"His face grew a pig's snout and he growled. Then it took on the shape of a donkey's head and he bayed.

"These changes were quick and violent. Usually exorcisms — but witnessing these changes I was overcome with anguish and terror."

In yet another astounding case, "The Devil took the shape of a snake," the priest said.

"A 12-year-old man came to see me and asked me to help him get rid of a terrible snake inside him.

"When he spoke I could hear the snake hiss — and as I spoke I could even see the shape that snake shaped Devil on the young man's body.

"During the final exorcism the man fell to the ground — and the snake left his body with a terrifying hiss — then disappeared."

During yet another gruelling exorcism, "An 11-year-old boy began vomiting stones as four pounds of stones. And he couldn't believe they had all come out of his stomach."

Since that day the youngster has had no further problems, the priest said.

"The things which occur during an exorcism are absolutely inexplicable and at times grotesque.

FATHER Ventura reenacts an exorcism. He warns that the power of the Devil is spreading around the world. In one instance he observed a pig's snout grow from a man's face.

3 brothers drown in hotel pool

— because they couldn't afford swimming lessons!

Three close-knit brothers who grew up on the streets of Brooklyn and never learned to swim went on their first out-of-town vacation together — and drowned in a hotel swimming pool!

Heroic George Chin, 15, died trying to save his twin brother Vincent and younger brother Winston, 13, who had slipped into the deep end of an indoor pool in Andover, Mass.

"None of the boys could swim because there aren't a lot of opportunities to learn when you're one of the 'hood people' who live on Ninth Avenue in Brooklyn," said a cop who knows the family.

"The Chins didn't go to a fancy private school with a pool and they didn't get a chance to learn like the kids who live in the suburbs. That's why they were so excited about their trip to Boston and Andover."

The tragedy occurred after a day of sightseeing on a chartered tour in which the brothers, all honor students, had visited both Yale and Harvard Universities.

As tour leaders were registering the youngsters at their hotel, the brothers joined other kids at the indoor pool.

Winston and Vincent apparently dived into the deep end of the pool and became disoriented. State Trooper Jack Gervin said, "Some of the kids thought they were clowning," the trooper said.

But an 11-year-old friend of the brothers knew they were in trouble.

"He started yelling and screaming and trying to get an adult to help," Gervin said.

"He threw them a life preserver, but the kids couldn't grab it."

Though he couldn't swim, George Chin dived into the water in an ill-fated attempt to save his struggling brothers.

Hotel food manager Paul Brown dived into the pool fully clothed and pulled the brothers from the water one by one. Vincent and Winston were pronounced dead at the pool.

George died several hours later at a hospital.

"This was the first time they were out of town on a vacation," said grief-stricken dad Walter Chin, who initially op-

Speeding car wipes out 3 generations in one blow!

A speeding driver crashed through a fence — and mowed down three generations of the Dennis family in an instant.

CRAWLS 5 MILES TO GET HOME!

8-month-old survives trek through bear-infested forest — on his hands and knees!

GRATEFUL mom Sarah Brocken celebrates baby Todd's safe return

By RICK TRACY

An 8-month-old baby boy left alone in a remote mountain forest showed up safe and sound two days later — after crawling five miles through the wilds to get back home!

Miracle infant Todd Brocken suffered cuts and bruises but was otherwise unhurt after his 48-hour trek through a dense forest infested with snakes, bears and other creatures of prey.

And amazingly, the tough tyke's ailing mother Sarah never realized he was missing until he crawled in the front door of the family's wilderness home in the Cariboo Mountains of British Columbia, Canada.

"He was hungry, thirsty and filthy as he could be," stunned Sarah recalled.

"His shirt and diaper were in shreds and he was very tired, but the poor kid wasn't even crying. He just sat there looking so happy to finally be home.

"I have no idea how he found his way through that forest — I just thank the Lord he did."

Todd's ordeal began when his doctor-nurse Sarah and her three kids had a picnic there with Sarah's sister Marie and Marie's two children.

"I was starting to feel really sick, so my sister offered to keep Todd at her house for a couple of days until I felt better," said Sarah, 28.

"I didn't see Todd when we got ready to leave so I thought he'd gone home with Marie. But Marie thought I was going to drop him off at her place, since I had all the baby's bottles and extra diapers and stuff in my car."

The unsuspecting mom drove the five miles home with her other children — ages 7 and 10 — as Todd snoozed behind a fallen log back at the picnic spot.

"I felt really rotten and went right to bed after we got home," Sarah said. "I woke up the next morning with a severe case of the flu. Thank God for my oldest daughter. She cooked and took care of her sister and me for two days."

The bedridden mom presumed Todd was safe with her sister until her 10-year-old daughter went outside two days later and found him crawling up to the front door.

"His hands and knees were blistered and cut, but other than that he was fine," said the shaken mom. "We'd only been to that area once before, so I just can't believe he found his way home through all that forest all by himself. When I think of what could have happened out there, I feel like the worst mom in the world.

"But he made it, and now I thank God everyday because He guided my little baby home to me."
